The story

Moss has a big idea: a harvest supper, where everybody brings something to share. The friends arrive one by one, and then a big golden moon comes up over the fields.

The lesson

The best part of a harvest is the people you share it with.

🌿 Nature fact: The harvest moon

The harvest moon is the full moon nearest the start of autumn. It rises low over the fields, big and golden. Long ago, it gave farmers extra light in the evening, so they could finish bringing in the harvest.

💬 Talk about it

- What did each friend bring to the harvest supper?
- What did the friends say thank you for?
- Why is it called the harvest moon?
- What would you like to say thank you for?

✂️ Try this: A thank-you supper

Have a little harvest picnic with a grown-up. Everybody brings one thing to share, and everybody says one thing they are thankful for. (Always ask a grown-up before eating anything you find outside.)
